BY LIZ HAAS

Mississippi Governor Kirk Fordice will attend a ceremony to designate Hancock County as an America 2000 community Tuesday, January 19. Hancock County will be the fifth Mississippi community to have earned the designation. The America 2000 committee met with the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce on Thursday to finalize the schedule of the Governor's visit. John Mason, Chamber president, and the Hancock High School band will greet the Governor and his staff at Stennis Air Park at 9:15 a.m. Governor Fordice will address the Hancock High School student body in the school gym at 9:45 a.m. He will depart for the Hancock County Courthouse at 10 a.m. for a proclamation ceremony where six fifth graders from each of the county schools, the anticipated Class of 2000, will be present. The Governor will address the audience on the America 2000 program. A reception will follow at 11:35 a.m. at the Bay Senior High School gym, and he will depart from the gym at 12:30 p.m. and spend the early afternoon at Stennis.

The America 2000 designation celebration will include a staff development day at Hancock High School on January 18, in which Dr. Mike Walters, Tupelo Superintendent of the Public School System, will lead the staff development programs. Walters will discuss how his area, which has already been named an America 2000 community, accomplished the goal of joining the schools to the business community and where they are headed. The program is open to all schools in the area. Hancock 2000 is the community's vision to strive for education excellence through achievement of national goals, which they have revised to fit Hancock County. The goals are: —all children will come to school ready to learn and parents will foster the desire to continue the learning process.

No takers for industrial park wastewater plant

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

If a use is not found soon for the former Port Bienville Industrial Park treatment plant, it will be sold for scrap, Hancock County Port and Harbor commissioners agreed Monday.

Commission director Harold "Buz" Olsen said the 8,000-gallon-per-day capacity plant might be suited for use at McLeod Park, but thus far the county board of supervisors has expressed no interest in relocating the aged but functioning facility.

Zoe Bretzius-Bowers of B&B Services requested should the plant be sold for scrap, that it first be stripped of the blower motors and stainless steel main panel for use as replacement parts.

Commission engineer Carlos Cordón reported the new 30,000-gallon-per-day treatment facility has been operating since November and is near total completion.

He reported, "Three items

Bay council discusses possible mandatory recycling ordinance

BY LIZ HAAS

The Bay St. Louis City Council discussed the possibility of a mandatory recycling ordinance at a Tuesday meeting.

Representatives from Gulf Coast Recycling and Waste Management met with the council to discuss the proposed residential curbside recycling collection service.

"We want to push to get the recycling program started, but we need to make it mandatory," said Jimmy Rutherford, councilman-at-large.

"It does positively affect the rate of participation," said Penny Penrose, GCR executive director.

Penrose and Terry Robinson of Waste Management proposed a joint venture contract to service the area in garbage pick-up and recycling.

She said recycling is an economic resource that employs local persons and benefits the environment.

Gulf Coast Recycling is a non-profit organization. Employees are hired from the employment service, welfare department, soup kitchens and rehabilitation programs.

The goal for Bay St. Louis, according to Mayor Eddie Favre, is to eventually drop to one-day garbage pick up.

This will be GCR's first municipal contract. According to Penrose, no other city in Mississippi has an existing program like this.

"We would like Bay St. Louis to be a model for the rest of the state," said Penrose.

The 4,000 bins with attached bungee cords are to be purchased through GCR at cost, with 600 extra bins for replacement purposes. The cost is $4.50 each.

Either the city will absorb the total of $18,000 or pass it on to the citizens.

Weekly curbside collection will be of beverage and food cans made of aluminum, tin and bi-metal; newspapers; glass bottles and jars that are clear, green or brown; plastic soft drink bottles that are clear or green; and plastic milk and water jugs that are natural

Unemployment rate continues to decline

BY LIZ HAAS

Hancock County's unemployment rate dipped to 5.5 percent in November, due largely to the new casino industry.

The rate fell from 6.4 percent in October, and is sufficiently lower than the national rate, 7 percent, and state, 6.1 percent.

"Since September of last year, there has been a steady stream of employment in Hancock County by gaming operations," said Harold "Buz" Olsen, executive director of the Port and Harbor Commission.

He said gaming operations are hiring a lot of people, making the opportunities for gainful employment elsewhere competitive.

In November of last year, the rate was 5.8 percent for Hancock County, 6.9 percent for the state and 6.6 percent for the national.

According to a December, 1992, report by the Mississippi Employment Security Commission, the civilian labor force in Hancock County is 14,530 with 13,730 employed and 800 unemployed.

"We couldn't be in a better situation as far as employment," said Olsen.

Casino Magic currently employs 1,500 people, about 1,260 are local residents, according to Debra Atkins, human resources manager.

According to Olsen, the casinos have also indirectly affected growth in other support industries, such as retail, construction, and hotel and restaurants.

Companies in Port Bienville Industrial Park currently employ more than 600, led by Gulf Coast Fabrication with 205, and GE Plastics with 130. Twenty are employed with companies located at Stennis Airport.

Hancock County's unemployment rate for November, 5.5 percent, is lower than neighboring counties other than Harrison County with 4.9 percent.

Pearl River County has a rate of 7.8 percent, Jackson County,

Bay-Waveland schools may reduce total days

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Bay-Waveland school district superintendent Paul Tisdale received board approval Monday to investigate the possibility of reducing this school year by two days.

Tisdale reported, due to Hurricane Andrew both county school districts added two days to this year's school calendar.

He commented since Bay-Waveland students exceed the minimum number of minutes per day required by the state, the accumulated time may suffice for the lost two days.

Board members questioned the needed to work in conjunction with Hancock County School District since Bay-Waveland students participate in Vo-Tech classes.

Tisdale said, "I don't speak with the (Hancock County) superintendent frequently, but I see no reason why our students can't be tested early...It will be up to the instructors."

FACILITY USES

Board members rejected use of an elementary facility by a local club and instructed the superintendent to draft a policy addressing usage of school facilities by private groups.

Tisdale explained the local Kiwanis Club requested use of the Bay Middle School gymnasium for a teen dance and would provide insurance for any damages or injuries incurred.

He stated, "I have concerns over how the dance will be controlled. When we have a dance students come in the door and don't leave until 11 p.m. and who's to say a 19-year-old won't come in with the younger kids?

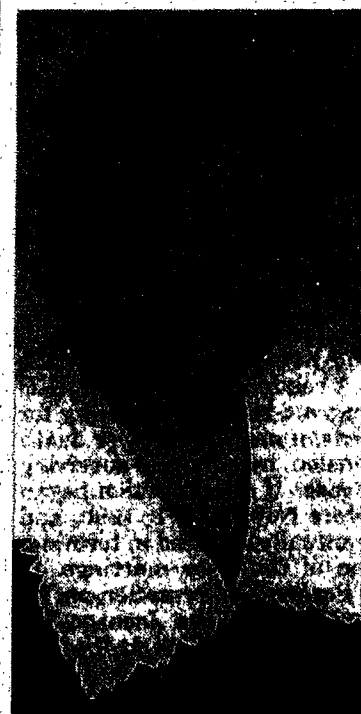

Board member Gary Yarbrough commented when a dance is at a school facility, parents believe their child is at a school sponsored and chaperoned event.

Leetown resident dies in house fire

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson reported, following the extinguishing of a house fire in Leetown community Tuesday, owner Ollie Eran Lee, 74, was found dead in the kitchen area.

State deputy fire marshal David Dry stated, "It appears that the fire started in a chair, and a heating pad may have been the cause."

Peterson explained, "We received a call about 5 p.m. requesting help from a fire department."

"The caller was hysterical, describing a lot of smoke and giving 27107 Hugh Lee Road in North West Hancock County as the location of the fire."

"Leetown Volunteer Fire Department was the first to arrive, and upon arrival found the house engulfed in flames and smoke."

"After extinguishing the fire, the body of Mrs. Lee was found about four feet from an outside door."

He added, Carriere, Southeast, Post 58, Kiln and Catahoula fire departments, along with the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, the state highway patrol and Mobile Medic responded to the call.

The fire remains under investigation by county fire marshal Richard Pate, state deputy fire marshal David Dry and sheriff's department investigator Matt Karl.

New laws reform VA benefit programs

"Recent enactment of new laws reformed VA's dependency and indemnity compensation, insurance, home loan guaranty, education, vocational rehabilitation, and burial benefit programs," said Larry D. Woodard, director of the VA Regional Office in Jackson.

One of the most significant changes will standardize dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC) payments to surviving spouses which began Jan. 1, 1993. This will eliminate the current payment schedule based on the deceased veteran's military rank.

Surviving spouses who are now receiving DIC payments of more than $750 per month will receive an increase effective Jan. 2.

The maximum amount of insurance coverage available under the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance (SGLI) program was increased from $100,000 to $200,000.

The new grants home loan eligibility to those members of the Selected Reserve who have completed 6 years of service and meet other eligibility criteria. A key point for Selected Reservists to remember is that eligibility under this provision expires on October 28, 1999.

Also included in the reform legislation for the VA loan guaranty program is a three-year test for negotiated interest rates, adjustable rate mortgages, and negotiable discount points.

At the end of the three-year period, VA can return to an administered interest rate if this change has not proved beneficial to veteran home buyers.

Other changes include: reduced funding fees when a loan is refinanced at a lower interest rate; and the use of energy efficient mortgages (EEMs). A direct loan program for Native American veterans who purchase homes on trust land will be implemented by new VA regulations at a later date.

A special vocational rehabilitation training program for certain veterans receiving VA pension benefits was extended for three years.

For the Montgomery GI Bill, monthly full-time benefits will be increased effective April 1, 1993, to $325 and $400 per month (depending on length of active service), while full time training rates for reservists will rise to $190 per month.

New legislation also extended VA grave marker and burial flag eligibility for reservists and National Guardsmen who had 20 years of service.

A related change to the DIC program restores eligibility for reinstatement of DIC or death pension benefits to surviving spouses if a legal action began before November 1, 1990, and eventually resulted in termination of the prior marriage.

For more information on VA benefits, call the Jackson VA Regional Office toll free 1-800-827-1000.

"We can only accept those items we can market," said Penrose.

Their public education program includes the recruitment and training of community volunteers; an ongoing distribution of educational materials; and a media campaign.

Penrose said that GCR would need approximately 30 days for an effective public education and community involvement program.

GCR offers a Red-Flag program for the elderly and handicapped, whereby they can place a red flag near their doors and the bins will be collected and returned there.

A block leader program calls on volunteers from block areas to encourage their neighbors to participate and act as a liaison between GCR and the individual neighborhoods.

They also offer a recycling hotline for comments and complaints about the service.

GCR currently services the area through an office paper recycling program that features a free collection service in exchange for the donation of the papers.

The council asked for the contract to be prepared for review in executive session at their next meeting, Tuesday, January 19, 7 p.m. A 5 p.m. workshop will precede the meeting to review the contract.

KREWE OF CAMELOT

Hester Plauche' asked the council to approve the 6.7 mile parade route for the Krewe of Camelot and for police assistance and clean up help from the city.

The council approved the route with the final details to be handled by the mayor and police chief as needed.

The parade will be on Mardi Gras Day, February 23.

The proposed route will depart from the Kmart parking lot and travel Highway 90 to the beach road. It will proceed down the beach to Main Street and go up Main Street to Dunbar Avenue. From Dunbar it will go back up the Highway to Blue Meadow Road and conclude at Casino Magic.

"The reason that we like this route is because it brings this parade into contact with the most businesses," said

Plauche.

The Krewe of Camelot will jointly participate with the Krewe of Real People.

The council approved:

—a clarification for a bid to clean up a property on Webster Street for $2,260, Lots 287C and 276 G, First Ward;

—the issuance of a check to the South Mississippi Epilepsy Foundation for $1,000;

—allocation of $250 for a Business After Hours party with the Chamber of Commerce in the new City Hall in March;

—$75 registration fee for council attorney, John Scaffidi, to attend the Mississippi Municipal Association conference in Jackson;

—advertisement for bids on the Highway 90 lighting project for a contractor to install lights from the Bay Bridge to the city limits, to be received by 5 p.m. with opening of bids at 7 p.m., January 16;

—filing for redistricting plan and to meet with Gulf Regional Planning Commission to put together the package;

—a motion to give City Clerk, Mike Cuevas, authority to set a public hearing for February 16, to determine whether the William Isham property at 205 Citizen Street is a public menace;

The council recessed until January 19 at 5 p.m.

Sales tax collections reported

City sales tax collections reported to the State Tax Commission in November (for the previous month) were as follows:

—Bay St. Louis, $56,904.88;

—Pass Christian, $17,459.21;

—Pacayune, $134,254.34; and —Waveland, $70,828.73.

Payment was scheduled to be made to the cities in December by the state treasurer.

WATER WELL

Gordon commented the new $64,855 portable water supply pumping system at the industrial park is undergoing adjustment difficulties which he predicted to be corrected by next month's meeting.

The new system includes two pumps and motors, full automatic controls, a chlorination system and a metering device. It increases water pressure and insures perpetual service in the event of single pump breakdown.

Bretzius-Bowers requested the former pump, motor and attachments be declared surplus and sold as scrap.

The commission chose to wait, as recommended by Gordon, until the new system fulling accepted, before declaring the equipment useless.

MARINA

Approval was given for the concreting of two existing slabs into one 25-foot by 58-foot slab at the Bayou Caddy Marina site, as requested by marinalessee Mike Cure.

The slab was described as connecting with the community docking and loading area.

Commissioner Pete Beebe stated, "He is not going to do anything but better the property."

ELECTRICAL SYSTEM

Cordon was requested to meet with Con-Tech Power Systems president Harold Thibodeaux and commissioner Omer DeBever for consultation on specifications needed for replacement of industrial park electrical controls damaged during a recent fire.

OTHER BUSINESS

The commission approved payment of the general operating docket; the railroad operating docket; the industrial park revenue docket; the railroad car wash docket; the terminal docket; port and harbor construction docket; and the T-hanger facility docket.

Commission officers elected for 1993 were: Dave McDonald, president; Harold "Bud" Frier, vice-president; Omer DeBever, secretary; and Pete Beebe, treasurer.

800 number connects fans to Elvis stamps

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

So you do not have the time to stand in line with the rest of Elvis' Hancock County fans, but you are interested in obtaining one or more of the commemorative postal stamps.

Here is some good news, the United States Postal Department is offering an 800 number by which you may "call for the King" and place an order. In case you missed the postal department's first issuance on Friday, another is planned for January 18. Opportunity sometimes knocks twice.

Local post offices have forms available for direct mail orders. The Elvis stamp can be purchased separately or as a package. Packages include selections of commemorative albums for condition protection; a limited-edition print by stamp's designer Mark Stutzman; a specially commissioned story of the King's life; and "first day of issue" Graceland cancellation.

Call 1-800-STAMP-24 (1-800-782-6724, ext. 895) for phone orders. Remember the postal department is only allowing the King to appear 800 million times before he too fades into philatelic heaven.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Today we hear a lot of talk about recycling, and it is already in process in the community of Diamondhead. Diamondhead's recycling began in January and it looks like there will be recycling in the City of Bay St. Louis within the next couple months.

There are cities across the nation doing recycling, and many have done it for many years.

I need not mention the problems governmental agencies have in providing adequate landfill sites.

The garbage that can be recycled helps in cutting down the space needed for landfills, and it also saves many of our valuable resources.

Many of us can remember when recycling in Hancock County was vital in helping our nation's war efforts.

Great efforts were made by our county and city leaders in the collection of rubber, iron, steel, copper, brass, etc., during World War II.

Paper sacks (bags) were reused many times because they were in very short supply. In other words, you took along a used bag or a basket to buy groceries.

Plastic is mostly used today for grocery shoppers, and I am told it is a product of oil. One day we may run out of that raw material.

A big use today of natural resources is paper used in the newspaper industry. Recycling of newsprint saves so many trees.

I am hoping everything will go well for the City of Bay St. Louis' proposed recycling program.

We will be giving you information, as it becomes available.

It has been some years since the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce held a retreat for its officers and directors at the beginning of a year.

This afternoon between 1 and 5 p.m., the chamber will hold such a retreat at the Waveland Resort Inn.

Past officers and directors are invited to participate and are asked to call Cindy Vernon, executive director, this morning for particulars.

While on the subject of the chamber, an After Hours will be held from 5 to 7 tonight at Hancock Bank's Highway 90 Branch, Bay St. Louis.

This is sponsored by Hancock Bank, and please RSVP by calling the chamber at 467-9048.

REPORT FROM THE SENATE

A renewed energy and much optimism established an environment for creative accomplishment as the 108th Regular Session of the Mississippi State Senate convened at the Capitol on Tuesday, Jan. 5.

Following tradition, the 52 senators stood together with raised hands to take their oaths of office. As elected officials of this state, the senators accepted the duties as well as the privileges of leadership with an overwhelming sense of commitment.

The first order of business was to adopt the rules for operation during this 99-day session. The Senate organized and elected their presiding officers. A vote by acclamation was given to veteran State Senator Walter "Pud" Graham of New Albany as the President Pro Tempore.

The Senate made history by electing E. J. Russell as the first black woman to serve as secretary of the Senate. Former Senator Irb Benjamin was chosen sergeant-at-arms and assistant secretary of the Senate.

The Congressional District caucuses for the election of members to the Rules Committee selected Senator Roger Wicker, District 1; Senator Doug Anderson, District 2; Senator Rob Smith, District 3; Senator Dick Hall, District 4; and Senator Clyde Woodfield, District 5, to handle any questions concerning the internal rules for members of the Senate.

Lieutenant Governor Eddie Briggs released committee assignments, hoping to meet a crucial need to enhance the chances for success by the Legislative body. There is good reason to expect that the Senate will gain the commitment of the people to meet its present challenges.

The chairman and members of each of the 28 committees hope to bring into perspective what our state has achieved in the past and what roles need to be pursued in the future. Leadership is the catalyst needed to transform the Senate's vision into viable results.

There are a number of legislative irons in the fire. Over 200 bills have already been introduced and the Lieutenant Governor has referred them to the appropriate committees for committee action.

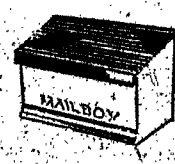

Senators have until Monday, Jan. 18, to have all general bills and constitutional amendments drafted and introduced for consideration during this session. These bills can make or break the Senate's effectiveness. The senators desire to go forward with an historic reform for fairness, simplicity and incentives for growth.

Senator Bill Johnson will be serving as vice chairman of the County Affairs Committee, and will also serve on the following committees: Finance, Judiciary, Municipalities, Ports & Marine Resources and Public Property.

Senator Johnson met with the Coast Delegation recently and summarized the meeting by saying, "After talking with the Coast Delegation, I found a commitment of unity that will certainly benefit the Coast as a whole. The Coast fared well on committee assignments and chairmanships."

If you need to contact Johnson during the session, his address is P.O. box 1018, Jackson, MS 39215 or P.O. Box 211, Bay St. Louis, MS 39521, or you may phone him at 359-3770 at the Capitol or 467-5889.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Serious problems exist in county school system

Dear Editor,

After reading the recent letter from a group of Hancock teachers, my concerns for the mediocrity of the educational system of Hancock County are substantially reinforced. I am amazed that a group, which by their own admission, contains some of the most educated and respected members in the field of education could so easily miss the entire thrust of my comments. Perhaps those educated and respected members were not involved with the letter.

I would recommend that people do some homework before committing themselves to print. Do not confuse being on the outside of Hancock High with being an outsider in the education business. I submit that my six years as a college professor, five years as a college administrator, five years on the school board of a private high school, and three years teaching physics at Hancock High give me more than adequate credentials to comment on the validity and worth of local education policies and procedures.

Whining about the myriad responsibilities of one's job in no way mitigates policies fostering mediocrity. The two concerns are not even related. Do teachers think they are the only ones facing reams of paperwork, changing rules, tiresome complaints, and maintaining peace within the ranks? Nearly everyone I know has the same set of problems. And I would like to meet the average teacher who has to deal with 2,000 students.

My disagreement with the exam policy is not based on what you want to do, but on the actuality of what you are doing. There is no great pride to be taken in passing 90% of the core requirements in a course. That is the absolute minimum acceptable level of achievement necessary to pass a course.

At Hancock, a C grade is attained at the 75% level, a low level of performance. Being absent for only two days in a system which legally requires attendance doesn't merit a reward. Why do you reward a person for meeting his responsibility? Try telling your employer that you deserve something extra because you decide to come to work.

The thrust of my original letter was that there are serious problems with the educational process in this county. They are evidenced in a number of small policies which in total reinforce mediocrity. I encourage interested members of the community to get involved and make your feelings known.

There is a very informative article on examination exemption policies at area high schools in the January 10, 1993 edition of the Sea Coast Echo. I would ask you to read it and see what other well-educated and respected individuals in the field of education think.

The teachers indicate that very innovative changes are being ushered in for the county. The most innovative change would be that we teach students to read, write, calculate, think, and accept responsibility.

The teachers accuse me of looking for solutions, but facing in the wrong direction. I hope they are right. From where I stand, I see a number of Hancock administrators and teachers with their heads in the sand, and it is neither a pretty nor an encouraging picture.

Sincerely,
John S. Kolodziej

Waveland aldermen fail to represent constituents

Dear Editor,

Waveland is being ruled by a tyranny of one. The city has four aldermen who are supposed to speak for our citizens, but only Ward Four is truly represented.

Wards one, two and three have voted in people who only represent the will of the mayor.

I have always believed that women in government were needed for a "softer" point of view, but after experiencing Stella Frilot, I have changed my mind. It is women like her that give women in power a bad name.

Fix up our civic center and bring back our charitable organizations!

Sincerely,

Litter, gambling problems face our community

Dear Editor,

Congratulations to the Alabama Crimson Tide for winning and being Number One again. I am sure Bear Bryant would have been proud.

Winning is great, but littering is not great. We do not want our Mississippi highways and our Interstate 10 turned into a garbage landfill.

It is pathetic the way the football fans from Alabama and Miami litter our Mississippi highways, and especially our Interstate 10 going to and from the game. It is an eyesore.

They should take their litter home with them and dispose of it properly. This goes for anyone else who throws litter along the highways. This affects all of us because our tax money has to pay for the cleanup. Our litter law should be enforced.

As for gaming, I would like to say, "I told you so." In a former letter I said, "If we give these people our waters, they will take our land." This is just what they are trying to do. They are buying land to build roads to lure their prey to their sinful den. They are trying to force people into selling their homes so they can build hotels, etc. People should not sell to them.

Don't let them destroy our quiet, peaceful, beautiful Gulf Coast cities. Sure, some poor unsuspecting people are winning a little money now, but this will not last long. They are getting rich, not you.

They are doing this to lure you there, and after awhile you will start losing big, and all of your hard-earned money will be gone.

What happens then? Will you start begging, borrowing and stealing? This is already happening. The following incident proves my point.

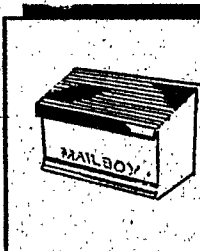

A man in this area lost his money gambling and stole his own television and pawned it to get back the money he lost. They are taking business away from our restaurants and motels. The out-of-town gamblers will soon lose interest in this place and will move on to bigger and better stakes elsewhere.

When this sinful place called a casino drains all of your money and respect from you, they will pull up anchor and set sail to some other unsuspecting city. All that will be left behind will be their despicable sign with its lights out and dangling from its pole.

I would say, "He who laughs last, laughs best," but this is not a laughing matter because we all lose. We will look around and see two ghost cities with only memories of our beloved Waveland and Bay St. Louis.

I pray that God will protect us from this terrible fate before it is too late.

Sincerely,
Doris Harvill

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Media sensationalizes bad role models for our youth

Dear Editor,

Wake up, America. Are all morals and values history?

A media blitz last week sensationalized friends switching identities to cheat on health insurance benefits. No matter how you try to rationalize that scene, it was out and out fraud — they meant to steal from the health insurance provider!

These men may be best friends, but are no more heroes than others who fake an auto accident and/or torch a home or business to collect insurance money.

They are what they've been convicted of being: felons, not in the same sense as burglars or murderers — surely they fit the same niche as an embezzler!

No wonder young people think nothing of stealing, raping, shooting. No one taught them right from wrong, and the media tends to glorify questionable acts.

Though parents must accept primary responsibility, all media forms are guilty of idolizing people like Madonna, Ice T, Axel Rose and others who send the wrong messages to our youth.

Everyone must be taught honesty, the rights and property of others in school, at home, in church and at work.

Unlike the Boy Scouts of old, you don't have to do a good deed every day (though it wouldn't hurt), just avoid trouble and live by the Golden Rule: Do unto others, etc.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

Tall fishing tales fill rainy days of late

It's time to go fishin' y'all. I am really beginning to think that I should change the opening of my column to read, "It's time to stay home and out of the rain and cold," instead of "It's time to go fishin' y'all."

I mean this weather is just plain ridiculous. It is almost like Mother Nature has decided that we should have monsoon seasons like they have in the tropics. Mold is growing on the mold.

One thing is for sure tho', this type of poor fishin' weather has a tendency to bring out the very best when it comes to original tales about fishin'.

Of course everyone out there in fishin' land knows for certain that fishermen never ever tell a lie when it comes to relating stories about fishin'.

This week I went out searching, in between the fog and killer rain drops, for any one who could relate any information about either how the fishin' was doing or how to catch fish in their area. The answers that I got confirmed my belief that to go a whole week without going fishin' makes one weak and so forth.

Glenn Estapa reports he is having fantastic results on the meow fish in the Pearl River system around the Mulatto Bayou area. Some of the catfish he is catching are real scale busters.

Glenn has been using something called a slat trap. He claims that some of the catfish he has been trapping are too big to fit their entire bodies into the trap, and as a result, they seem to be swimming around with the trap.

Matter-of-fact, Glenn has been able to save quite a bit of outboard motor gas and claims that this should qualify him for master ecologist and the past week.

Glenn gets excellent mileage with his boat by using natural propulsion methods. He just attaches two large meow fish caught, in slat traps, to the bow of his boat and lets them pull his boat around.

He didn't tell me, but I presume that he shortens the rope on the right trap when he wants to go right, and shortens the rope on the left trap when he wants to go left. I wonder how he stops, much less go backward.

Barney Martin says he is going to have to stop bass fishing now that squirrel season is almost over. I know that this sounds like a strange combination, but Barney claims that he only knows how to catch the two together.

It seems Barney first started catching the combination of squirrel and bass when he was drifting slowly along the bayous of Hancock County.

One day he noticed a squirrel running along a log sticking in the water to pick up an acorn that was laying on the end of the log. When the squirrel finally made his way to the end of the log, reached down and picked up the acorn, this great big bass jumped clear out of the water and swallowed the squirrel.

Well, Barney didn't pay much attention to this incident until he saw the bass swim over to the log a few minutes later and place another acorn on the log. Ever since that day, Barney places a hook in acorn and uses them on a type of trot line placed on logs to catch his combination of bass and squirrel. Of course he can only fish like this during squirrel season.

I was able to get some legitimate information from at least one person, and that was at the Bayou LaCroix Marina on Hwy. 603.

Gerald Dunn has been doing very well on catfish in the area by turning the meow fish into bow wow fish. Gerald claims the secret to his excellent success is his use of a product called Benji's Moist and Chunky Dog Food for his catfish bait. Gerald recommended that you place the dog food in a microwave oven for at least 45 seconds before you use it for bait.

This tends to toughen the dog food so it will stay on the hook longer. I don't know if you should tell your wife when you put the dog food in her microwave oven.

Gerald claims that the Benji's Moist and Chunky Dog Food gives off a nice greasy film that the meow fish seem to go crazy over.

He also stated that he finds it helpful if you spit on your hooks!

Bayou LaCroix Marina launched about 30 boats this past weekend and reports, that while the fishin' was slow, some boats managed to catch quite a nice mess of sac-a-lait. They also suggest that you try fishin' by the bridge for cats.

This week's wonderful wise words, don't try to get a straight answer from fishermen who can't get out to fish.

I wonder if Glenn Estapa will apply for a U.S. patent on his meow fish propulsion system, turtle.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

Seafaring men long ago brought curry powder and curry recipes home to America from far Eastern shores as intriguing treasures for their wives, who soon learned that the hot spiciness of curries, balanced with the blandness of the accompanying rice, made for memorable meals.

Here's an authentic and easy curry recipe from India, which I've used and enjoyed for many years:

JUNGA PATIA CURRY

or Prawn (Shrimp) Curry 1 lb. medium shrimp, shelled and deveined

2 bell (green) peppers, finely minced

1 lb. onions, finely minced

1 clove garlic, finely minced and 1 red (hot) pepper, minced

1/2 tsp. curry powder

1 tsp. cayenne

1/2 tsp. black pepper, salt optional

1 1/2 oz. tomato puree

1 Tbsp. flour

1/4 cup water. Mix together shrimp, green and red pepper, sprinkling with a little salt if desired. Set aside. Brown onion in barest bit of oil, add garlic, pepper and curry powder and saute for four or five minutes.

Mix the flour with enough water to make a paste, and add to the shrimp mixture. Stir in the remaining water, and cook until the mixture thickens, stirring constantly. Serve over rice, along with the condiments or "go-alongs" of your choice, such as peanuts, fried chopped bananas, crumbled bacon, chutney, etc.

(Four servings) (Copyright, 1993, Katharine D. M. Caire)

Watching the world go by Bridge tenders stand guard over Bay of St. Louis

BY LIZ HAAS

Bridge tender Bill Zimmerman of Waveland was working at the old toll gate the day Hurricane Camille hit, packing 200 mile per hour winds.

The job of bridge tender is one that calls for bravery when hurricanes are headed our way, waiting for a storm to hit the area.

They have to stand guard and ensure boats make it to safety.

"We left just six hours before the actual storm hit when the winds reached 60 miles per hour," he said.

John Smith, another bridge tender, said he was on duty during the last hurricane.

"The waves were breaking over the bridge before I left," he said.

"You know you're gonna leave before it gets really bad," said Smith.

The hurricane broke out a window in the office, scattering papers everywhere and ruining the generator, causing it to be replaced.

And if you have ever wondered just how the bridge tender gets to work every day, the answer is a simple one: his relief worker drives his car to him.

The job of bridge tender is one that allows time for other activities.

"I'm a hobby reader and my job has allowed me time to enjoy reading," said Zimmerman.

Zimmerman is retiring the first of March and plans to spend his retirement taking life easy, hunting and fishing.

A military retiree, he has worked on the bridge for 26 years. Zimmerman and his wife have five grown children who are all married and live in this area.

Zimmerman said the biggest hazard on the bridge has been the foggy mornings.

Smith has worked for 20 years in this field. He worked on the Pearl River bridge and also in the Kiln before working on the Bay bridge.

The bridge tender's responsibilities include taking care of the equipment and watching the traffic, in addition to raising the bridge when necessary.

Smith said the job is kind of slow in the winter, but in the summer, he averages 15 to 20 openings per eight-hour shift.

"This is not a young person's job," he said. "I like it because it's quiet, and when I'm not busy working the bridge, I can read."

Smith came to the area after Camille from Clinton, North Carolina.

"I've been here long enough now that you can call me a native," he said.

Smith has never been married. "I'm just an old bachelor from start to finish," he said.

Other bridge tenders are

Rita Smith, Calvin Delbert and O'Neal Cochran.

The bridge tenders are employed by the Mississippi Highway Department in Gulfport.

Stennis plays key role in space program

Special to the Echo

1992 was a year filled with a multitude of changes, new directions and impressive accomplishments at NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center.

The center continued to make strides as America's premier rocket test facility.

It is responsible for testing all the main engines which power the Space Shuttle into low-Earth orbit.

Because of its vital role in engine testing over the past three decades, NASA named Stennis Space Center as the agency's center of excellence for large propulsion systems testing.

Main engine testing

The Space Shuttle main engine test program reached a major milestone in July, when a 135-second test marked the 2,000th hot firing of a shuttle main engine.

Stennis personnel conducted 92 tests for a total of 33,769 seconds during 1992.

As a comparison, the engine run duration during a typical Space Shuttle mission is 520 seconds.

Pratt & Whitney's alternate Turbopump Development Program achieved two milestones in testing in 1992. In October, the program's pace accelerated with tests of the high-pressure oxidizer turbopumps conducted on two of Stennis' three test stands.

A second milestone in December put the program over 6,000 seconds of firing time on the alternate pumps. The program's goal is to develop turbopumps for the shuttle main engine which will require less maintenance and result in increased operational life. Tests on the oxidizer pumps began in March 1991 and the first flight on a shuttle main engine is now set for late 1994.

National Launch System Advanced Solid Rocket Motor

Construction continued in support of the National Launch System and the Advanced Solid Rocket Motor programs. Construction progressed on the $78 million Component Test Facility, which will test turbopumps for the National Launch System, an unmanned, heavy-lift rocket engine. In November, work began on the $55 million Advanced Solid Rocket Motor test stand.

National Aero-Space Plane

A new program got underway in 1992 with the start of construction of the High Heat Flux Facility in support of the X-30 National Aero-Space Plane. The X-30 will take off from a runway like an airplane, fly into space and land on a runway.

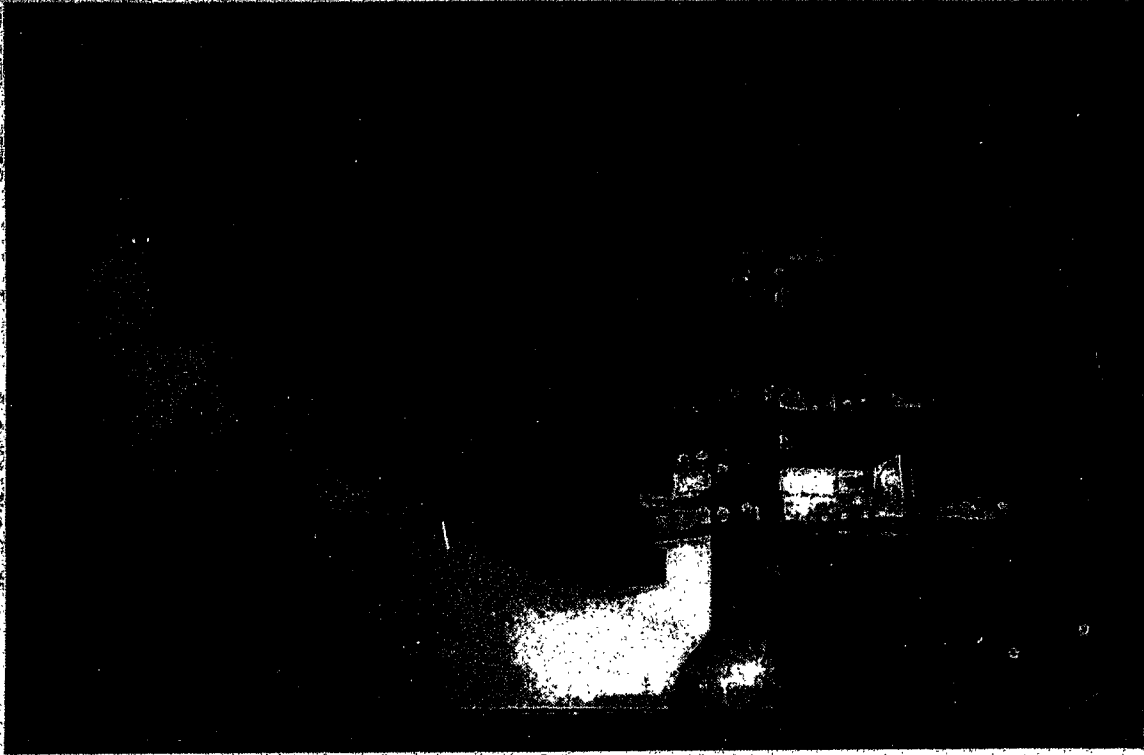

The NASP will travel at 25 times the speed of sound (Mach 25) which will cause extreme heat on the plane's surfaces. The facility will test

National Aero-Space Plane materials to determine how well they withstand the extreme temperatures generated by flying at such high speeds through the Earth's atmosphere.

ELAS — Hall of Fame

The U.S. Space Foundation selected the ELAS software program for induction into its Space Technology Hall of Fame for 1992. Stennis Space Center's Science and Technology Laboratory developed this software for NASA in the 1970s to process remotely-sensed images.

Today its uses include enhancing Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI) images, producing images of Egyptian tomb paintings and other antiquities, processing aerial photographs and submarine sonar images, and determining ground elevation maps.

Stennis conducted 92 tests of the Space Shuttle Engine in 1992.

Wilmer Eye prototype unveiled

NASA, Stennis Space Center's Science and Technology Laboratory, and the Johns Hopkins Wilmer Eye Institute in Baltimore, Md., unveiled a system which could help millions afflicted with low vision problems.

The prototype was unveiled in May and consists of a computer, an auxiliary camera and a pair of wrap-around video screens worn like eyeglasses.

In December the low vision system received the Award of Excellence in Technology Transfer at Technology 2002, a national conference that spotlights leading-edge technologies from NASA and other federal agencies.

NASA helps hurricane victims

Devastation struck Florida and Louisiana when Hurricane Andrew carved a path of destruction through both states in August. Stennis employees rallied together to collect needed supplies for Louisiana residents.

SSC Science and Technology Laboratory personnel flew the NASA Learjet, with its specialized sensors, over south Florida. There they took digital images of the areas hardest hit by the storm. Florida officials and disaster teams used the images to assess the damage caused by the storm.

Education

NASA's major emphasis on education continued throughout 1992. Stennis Space Center's Teacher Resource Center (TRC) held 20 workshops, attended by 427 educators. The TRC provided educational materials to 2,478 teachers. A redesigned Visitor Center displaying new exhibits on NASA and other agencies attracted over 110,000 people from all 50 states and around the world. Over 33,000 students came to Stennis Space Center to participate in education programs. Early Education Monday, a program designed to enhance awareness of space science in children aged 3-6, continued to be popular for area kindergarten students.

The first phase of Space Believe, SSC's newest educational facility, opened in May with the goal of stimulating children's interest in science and mathematics. Space Believe is an interactive learning center designed by NASA engineers from SSC and constructed by volunteers from Pearl River Community College's vocational-technical program.

The Tri-State Higher Education Consortium and the Tri-State Research Consortium were established in conjunction with NASA's Tri-State Education Initiative. This initiative, implemented in late 1991, is a cooperative effort between NASA and state, local and other federal agencies to work toward accomplishment of the national educational goals outlined in America 2000.

The TSEL region, which encompasses an area within a 50-mile (80-kilometer) radius of Iuka, Miss., was officially designated as the nation's first America 2000 community to cross state lines.

Goldin heads NASA

Danile Goldin, former vice president and general manager of TRW Space Technology Group, took over the helm of the space agency the first of April. Just two weeks later, Goldin visited Stennis Space Center where he quickly challenged employees to stretch to be the best in the world at testing large propulsion systems.

In the months since becoming NASA administrator, Goldin has instituted a number of organizational and leadership changes at the space agency to improve management and bring focus to programs that are essential to America's future.

There were eight Space Shuttle missions this year, most conducted with the cooperation of a host of international partners. In the year's first mission, NASA and space agencies in Europe, Canada, France, Germany and Japan cooperated in planning experiments aboard the International Microgravity Laboratory-1.

The United States, France, Germany, Belgium, Switzerland, the Netherlands and Japan conducted experiments as part of the ATLAS-1 payload.

The Spacelab-J Science laboratory mission was one devoted mainly to Japanese experiments. Lageos-II, built by the Italian Space Agency from NASA blueprints, and the European Retrieval Carrier were both successfully deployed.

Shuttle maiden voyage

The newest Space Shuttle—Endeavor—took to the skies twice in 1992.

Spacewalk/shuttle mission

NASA astronauts conducted the longest spacewalk in the history of the U.S. space program—eight hours, 29 minutes—when they retrieved the stranded INTELSAT satellite. The longest space Shuttle mission—14 days—occurred in June 1992.

Mars observer launched

America's return to the Red Planet got underway in September with the launch of the Mars Observer. This spacecraft will provide scientists with an orbital platform from which they can examine and map the entire Martian surface and atmosphere.

Vo-Tech Center offers adult evening courses

The Hancock County School District's Vo-Tech Center, located adjacent to Stennis Airport, is offering several adult evening vocational courses during the Spring 1993 semester.

Business and office courses will include beginning typewriting, intermediate typewriting, advanced typewriting and word processing (Word Perfect).

Trade and Industrial courses will include air conditioning and refrigeration, auto mechanics, carpentry/cabinetmaking, machine shop and welding.

Cost per course varies from $50 to $160 depending on course selection. Classes that develop will begin meeting the week of January 18 and continue for 17 weeks with students meeting one or two nights per week, depending on course selection.

Students may register Thursday, Jan. 14 from 8 a.m. until 7 p.m. In the event 10 or more students do not register and pay fees, the scheduled course will be cancelled.

For additional information, contact the Hancock County Vo-Tech Center at 467-3568.

Marine Discovery Sea Camp early registration begins

Pre-registration has begun for the 1993 sessions of Project Marine Discovery Sea Camp at Gulf Coast Research Laboratory's J. L. Scott Marine Education Center and Aquarium in Biloxi.

Eight one-week sessions are scheduled for children ages 6 to 12—June 7-11, June 14-18, June 21-25, July 5-9, July 12-16, July 26-30 and August 9-13.

Additionally, the June 21-25, July 5-9, and July 12-16 sessions will be open to 13 and 14-year-olds as well.

A charge of $100 for ages 9-14 and $90 for ages 6-8 covers instructional costs and materials, transportation and admission fees. Campers provide their own lunches, snacks, and drinks.

Sea Camp, initiated in 1988 by GCRL and the Mississippi-Alabama Sea Grant Consortium, uses boat trips, field excursions, hikers, films, arts and crafts, laboratory demonstrations, films, aquarium tours and hands-on activities to acquaint young people with the marine environment and coastal resources.

Last summer, more than 1,360 from 25 states and Canada participated in Sea Camp. Because of the program's popularity with children from other areas, local parents are encouraged to register their children as soon as possible.

For more information, call the Marine Education Center and Aquarium at 374-5550.
